WEBINAR "RURAL HEALTH SECTOR IN LATIN AMERICA AND THE CARIBBEAN"

In the rural area, the supply of drinking water and the sanitation of wastewater in Latin America and the Caribbean present great challenges in terms of coverage, institutionality, financing, sustainability, regulations, etc.

On the other hand, climate change and the water crisis have made it more difficult to advance solutions and good management of water resources has become more urgent.

The Division of Drinking Water and Rural Sanitation (DISAR) of AIDIS, organized this Workshop on October 18, to learn about the visions that international organizations such as ECLAC and the IDB have in this regard.
